5 Ways to Stop Second Guessing Yourself

Implementing a new badging, tracking or verification solution comes with some inherent risks. If you stack the odds in your favor however, the desired successful outcome is within reach.

Follow these five steps to guarantee success:

1. Clearly define your desired goals.
   Having a concise, reachable end goal provides you with a focus. Identify exactly what the desired outcome needs to be as well as the motivation for moving this way. This will provide you with the insight you need to begin exploring what solution is best.

2. Think ahead.
   Technology improves daily, so when thinking of the future, ask yoursel:

   - How may things be different five years from now?
   - How may my goals change?

Just how easy is it to duplicate your ID badge ?

It's easier than you think with over 250 "Fake ID" websites willing to make any badge you want for "novelty purposes only". Not to mention the abundance of legacy direct-to-card printers, just like yours, available on auction sites for a nominal investment.

However, a standard photo ID badge produced on white PVC card stock is no longer enought to keep your facility secure. Easily take your ID badging program further by incorporating one or more of the following security features easily into your corporate ID to minimize your risk of fraudulent entry.
